

LEXHAM SGNT SYNTACTIC FORCE CODES

These codes, along with the Syntactic Force data type name (`sgnt-syn`) can be used in several contexts in the Libronix DLS. For instance, they can be used in the Reference browser, to construct semi-complex textual queries, or even inside of the Graphical Query Editor.

The data type structure is grouped by class, with instances of class aggregated. So, “Accusative” is a class, “accusative absolute” (`acc-abs`) is an instance of the class. Using Bible Speed Search, one could search for “accusative absolute” by typing: `sgnt-syn = acc-abs`. This search returns five verses (in the LSGNT version 2007-12-20T00:20:20Z).

Most available codes are listed below. Fuller descriptions of each term, along with references to common grammars, are available in the Lexham Syntactic Greek New Testament Glossary, which (if you have access to LSGNT) is available in your Logos Bible Software library. For more information on searching using data types, see: <http://www.logos.com/training/basicsearching#datatypes>.
